

ALLIED WARPLANES SINK TWO NAZI SHIPS

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Mrs. Viola Morrow Wheeler, whose poems have appeared frequently in metropolitan newspapers, is now living with her son-in-law and only daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orr, in Washington C. H.

Mrs. Wheeler first began scribbling verse for her own diversion at the age of 12. She was born on a farm and went to school in nearby Norwalk. . . she has found joy in verse all her life, except for the several years after her husband's death in 1927 when her work as a nurse took all of her time. . . although most of her poems have appeared in newspapers, some have been published in periodicals. . . she prefers verse with rhyme and rhythm and considers the thought the important thing. . . after which "comes the fascinating game of searching for the right words in which to clothe it" . . . her life-long habit of reading gives her the principal background for her writing. . . here is one of her poems:

THE GOODBYE

I saw them on a windy pier,
They had a bridal air;
Their eyes were busy with their
live,
They did not see me there.

She made her arms into a wreath
To put around his throat,
And hung there like a locket
On a chain, until a boat
That came to carry him away
Made ready to depart.
And that is how I came to see
Into a woman's heart.

Walking up street today I recalled that not so many years ago
the sidewalks in part of the uptown district were brick and stone-flagging, with many uneven
places in them and more or less dangerous to pedestrians.

As the years have gone by, cement sidewalks have gradually
taken the place of the old brick
and stone walks, just as the brick and stone walks took the place of the old board, puncheon and gravel walks many years ago.

Now virtually every foot of sidewalk in the up-town area is concrete, and in most instances
the sidewalks are of good width
for this size city.

I have noticed that the sidewalks have kept pace with the improvement in business houses
and streets, until they are on a par with the sidewalks of any other city and a real pleasure to use.

I have often wondered why pedestrians do not pay more attention to the rules of the road in using sidewalks.

Not only in this city but in
nearly all other cities, pedestrians,
regardless of the crowded condition of the sidewalks, all want to walk at random instead of keeping to the right.

What an easy matter it would be if the pedestrians going in one direction would keep next to the curb and the ones going in the opposite direction would keep
next to the buildings!

One thing that interferes with free movement on the sidewalks
are the groups who congregate in the center of the walks and make it necessary for all other persons
using the sidewalk to detour.

By standing at one side of the walk, such groups do not interfere so much with others using the walks and this is a good thing
to keep in mind.

30,000 JAPS KILLED; ONLY 20 CAPTURED

ON THE UPPER YANGTZE
FRONT, June 26 (Delayed)—
(AP)—Japanese dead and wounded in the unsuccessful push along the upper Yangtze River totaled 30,000 but only 20 of the enemy
were taken prisoner, according to official Chinese figures.

Army officials failed to disclose the number of Chinese casualties but General Chen Cheng said they "were far less than those of the enemy."

BACK - TO - WORK TREK BY MINERS IS PICKING UP

Operations Being Resumed
In Scattered Spots But
Process Is Slow

SOME PICKETING REPORTED

Few Local Unions Vote To Continue Idleness But Others Fall in Line

PITTSBURGH, June 28 (AP)—
Scattered gains in the number of men working in the coal fields
were shown today in early reports which indicated the movement to restore full shifts in the partially-operating fields might be a slow process.

In Ohio, United Mine Workers leaders reported all except 2,350 of its 15,000 miners back in the pits with the expectation all would be back tomorrow. Only 3,200 worked in Ohio last week end.

On Sunday many union meetings were held in the Appalachian field at which scores of locals
voted to go back to work, and scattered reports from the Pennsylvania soft coal field gave an increase in the number of men working but the captive steel mines still were short-handed.

The United States Steel Corporation reported operations "better" at its mines but none of the four Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation mines worked. A J.
and L. spokesman said pickets prevented workers from entering one mine.

President James Mark of the big central Pennsylvania district said incomplete reports showed 15,000 out of 45,000 miners were working, an improvement over
last week by several thousand.

Kentucky reported 51,600 of its 60,000 miners working—a gain of more than 7,000 over last week.
Union officials explained that "local situations" prevented the return at some mines. In western Kentucky 4,500 men were out "on vacation," protesting they received only $20 vacation pay instead of $50 agreed upon.

Indiana reported 6,500 in the mines out of 8,000, a decrease of 500 from last week.

BOMBER FROM CLEVELAND HAS SUNK JAP CRUISER

CLEVELAND, June 28 (AP)— Mayor Frank J. Lauche said the four-engined bomber "Spirit of Cleveland" sank a Japanese cruiser off Guadalcanal last
Aug. 10, five weeks after leaving Cleveland airport for Australia.
The ship was purchased through public contributions in the Cleveland News' "Bomber for MacArthur" campaign which produced $323,611. It was rechristened "Tugboat Annie" by its crew according to custom after reaching the front.

FINDLAY COLLEGE PREXY NOW NAVY LIEUTENANT

WOMAN SENT TO PRISON FOR THREATENING LETTER SENT GOVERNOR BRICKER

COLUMBUS, June 28 (AP)—
Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood
today sentenced Mrs. Frances Mary MacAretzes, 32-year-old Columbus laundry worker, to three years in prison for sending a threatening letter through the mail to Gov. John W. Bricker.

Mrs. MacAretzes asserted in the letter that she was acting under
"direct orders" from Hitler.
The court recommended medical treatment for the woman. Mrs.
MacAretzes remarked: "I am sorry for everything. I didn't mean to do anything wrong."

New York Air Raid Warden
Confesses Informing Nazis
Of Convoy Movements

NEW YORK, June 28 (AP)—
Ernest Frederick Lehmitz, 57, pleaded guilty today before U. S.
Commissioner Martin C. Epstein
in Brooklyn to FBI charges that he gathered information on troop
movements, convoys and armament production for the Nazi intelligence system while serving as an air raid warden in Tomp-kinsville, Staten Island.

A withered-faced man in old clothes, Lehmitz told Epstein in an even voice that he pleaded guilty to the FBI charges and was ordered held in $50,000 bail for grand jury action. He will be prosecuted under the wartime
espionage act which provides a sentence of death or 30 years in prison for conviction.

WHIRLAWAY RETIRED BECAUSE OF INJURY

Greatest Money-winner of All
Horses To Go Home

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 28—
(AP)—Whirlaway, all-time champion money-winning thoroughbred, has been retired from racing and will be shipped from Chicago to Calumet Farm near here
within the next two weeks, his owner, Warren Wright, announced today.

Mrs. Margaret Glass, Calumet
farm manager, made public Whirlaway's retirement following a long-distance telephone conversation with Wright in Chicago.
She issued the following statement from Wright:

"We have found that Whirl-away has not fully recovered from an injury received in New Orleans last winter. Rather than punish him in trying to bring him back to racing form
or run the risk of breaking him
down, we have decided to retire
him and give him his much-deserved rest. We feel that he is entitled to this and believe he has made a great contribution to rac-

NOTICE SERVED ON DE GAULLE TO QUIT POLITICS

Leader of Fighting French Is Told Allied Commander Is Going To Clamp Down

GIRAUD GIVEN SUPPORT

Bickering To Get Political Power Brings Warning
Against Interference

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—
Gen. Charles De Gaulle and his adherents had unofficial but emphatic notice today that the Allied commander in French
Africa—charged with final preparations for an assault on Axis-held Europe—will brook no interference due to French political controversies.

An exposition of Anglo-American policy and purposes made available to this writer by such informants and in such circumstances as to leave no doubt as to its authenticity makes clear that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower will be firmly supported by both governments in whatever additional steps he finds it necessary
to take to secure his communication lines, avert delay in using the French African bases for aggressive action against the enemy
and, above all, reduce the hazards to American, British and French forces under his command.

The Allied commander took the first step when he insisted to the French committee for national liberation at Algiers that Gen. Henri Giraud must remain in complete authority over French elements of his armies and that efforts by De Gaulle to oust officers under Giraud in favor of his own adherents must come to an end.

There is no intimation of what further measures may be required to safeguard Allied forces and fighting French morale. There can be no doubt, however, under the Allied policy outlined to this writer that time is regarded as a vital element in the military situation in French Africa, or that French political controversies will be dealt with on a strictly military basis and regardless of the effect on the status or ambitions of De Gaulle or any other individual.

Although both Eisenhower and Washington authorities are remaining aloof from French factional political wrangling, one informant here who cannot be quoted directly said the situation
in French African territories is
"difficult because of the continuing controversy" between De Gaulle and Giraud and their political adherents.

CATTLE AND HOGS TO HIT NEW HIGH

Livestock Plentiful But Meat
Scarce, 'Tis Said

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—
The bureau of agricultural economics informed representatives Thomas (D-Tex) today that the probable number of cattle on the hoof next year will be 80,
000,000 head and number of hogs
will reach 87,000,000, unprecedented highs.

It supplied the figures to Thomas upon his request, after he had conferred with the office
of price administration and the war food administration urging that the "ironical situation" of meat shortages while cattle and hogs are more numerous than ever be corrected.

The BAE figures follow:
Cattle and calves: 1940—62,
800,000; 1941—71,500,000; 1942—75,200,000; 1943—(partially estimated)—78,200,000; 1944—(estimated)—80,000,000.
Hogs: 1940—61,100,000; 1941—
54,300,000; 1942—60,400,000; 1943
(partially estimated)—73,700,000;
1944—(estimated)—87,000,000.

Outlook Brightens As Congress Drives For Summer Recess

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—
Congress, working its way through $115,000,000,000 in appropriations bills toward a summer recess, was cheered today by an official report that the United Nations are "rapidly approaching" a final victory.

The optimistic estimate came from Lieut. General Joseph T.
McNary, deputy chief of staff,
in testimony made public by the Senate appropriations committee on the $71,500,000,000
"decisive budget" war bill.

The justice department announced the indictment in New York of three American chemical companies, charged with creation of a world-wide cartel in war-vital titanium compounds, in conspiracy with German, British,
Italian, Japanese and other foreign interests.

The American concerns named
in the indictment were the National Lead Company, E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Company,
and Titanium Company, Inc., subsidiary of National Lead.

a bill to extend the life of the President Roosevelt signed today the largest appropriation bill

in the nation's history, providing approximately $33,000,000,000 for the 12 months starting July 1.
The President also approved
the $2,621,366,879 independent

passed the legislation called for abolition of the board August

The broadcast said the Guerrillas had wrecked several important bridges on the railroad and that it would probably be unusable for a considerable time.

'BIG INCH' PIPE LINE NEAR COMPLETION

U. S. Steel Mill Turns Out
Six Miles of Pipe a Day

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—
U. S. Steel Corporation subsidiaries claimed a record today
for the National Tube Co., Lorain, O., in production of 28,106
tons of seamless steel pipe since last July for the 1,272-mile oil
pipe line from Texas to the east coast.

A U. S. Steel statement said
the last train load of 24-inch pipe
for the "big inch" has gone to its destination and crews of pipe-liners are laying the last leg from Norris City, Ill., to Phoenixville, Pa.

In claiming production in record time, the statement said on many occasions the 41-foot steel pipe sections were turned out at a speed of six miles a day, or enough to load a train of 45 cars.
The "big inch" will have a capacity of 300,000 barrels of oil
daily.

National tube workmen now
have turned their efforts to producing pipe for a companion 20-inch gasoline line which is being laid alongside the "big inch" to alleviate the east's gasoline shortage.

MUNITIONS TRAIN WRECKED BY BLAST

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo.,
June 28 (AP)—Residents of this inland city dug jagged shrapnel
from their yards and the walls
of building today as souvenirs
of a terrifying four-hour bombardment from an exploding munitions train.

A least four persons were injured yesterday by particles of high powered shells, some of which hurtled a mile from the siding where the blazing cars
were isolated by firemen.

Fire Chief Charles Downing's
right arm, torn by shell fragments, was amputated.

Increase Recommended By U.S. Armed Forces For Dependency Allowances

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—
The armed forces recommended to Congress today a minimum increase of 10 percent in the dependency allowances to children
of military personnel in the lower ranks, along with broadening of the whole allowance system.
The effect of the proposed increases, incorporated in a bill introduced by Chairman Reynolds (D-NC) of the Senate military committee, would be to boost the allowance for a wife

with one child from the present $62
a month to $68. Each additional child would receive $11 instead of $10.

A wife with no children would continue to receive $50, of which the government contributes $28
and the enlisted man $23. The government meets entire cost of allowances for children.

The proposed increases would boost government dependency
outlays a total of $393,000,000
yearly, Johnson said.

YANK BOMBERS HIT ITALY AND FRANCE AGAIN

Axis Bases in Greece Are Smashed Second Time in

INVASION JITTERS ACUTE

Russia Comparatively Quiet
But Reds in Hand-to-hand
Fight in Finland

(By The Associated Press)
A large force of United States
heavy bombers attacked targets in France late today.

The first brief announcement
from headquarters of the European theater of operations of the United States Army did not specify targets and gave no details on losses and air victories.

The action part of a round-the-clock aerial offensive of heightening intensity, followed a morning
sweep in which RAF Spitfires and Typhoons sank two German
ships, forced another to beach,
and stopped three others off the Dutch coast.

The British announced officially tonight that "not less than"
400 Axis warships, supply ships
and small craft have been sunk
or damaged by mines laid in European waters since the war began.

Lashing at Axis targets in Greece for the second time in a week, American heavy bombers hammered two airbases near Athens Sunday, it was disclosed
today, and Naples was battered again Saturday in the powerful Allied air offensive overspread-ing the Mediterranean.

The American heavies of the Middle East command rained bombs upon the Eleusis and Has-sani airbases, dramatically reviving the threat of Allied invasion in the eastern Mediterranean
and creating heavy damage.

Wellington bombers of the North African air forces dropped bombs in the dock area and on industrial plants of Naples in an attack Saturday night, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Italian Sunday commu-
que previously disclosed that the Naples area had been the objective of a Saturday night raid, and asserted that only slight damage
had been done.

Six Axis planes, attacking Allied shipping Saturday, were shot down by coastal air force
planes and two more were brought down by naval gunfire,
it was announced.

Two Allied aircraft were said
to be missing from all of the operations.

CIVIC LOAN BUILDING VALUED AT $12,500

Company Seeks To Reorganize
Under Bankruptcy Act

COLUMBUS, June 28 (AP)—
A court-appointed committee of appraisers today placed values
ranging from $47,500 to $60,000
on the Civic Loan Company's Lancaster Building.

The Loan Company seeks to reorganize under the federal bankruptcy act.

At a hearing conducted by Gale H. Butt, special master, a committee comprised of H. K.
Balthaser and S. O. Burton of Lancaster and E. A. Ellies of Washington C. H. evaluated the Lancaster property $60,000 as going concern, not subject to lease;
$50,000 as a going concern, subject to a Knights Pythias lifetime lease for second floor quarters, and $47,500 as the building's current true market value, not subject to lease and not as a going concern.

The same committee evaluated
the company's Washington C. H.
building at $14,000, as occupied by a going concern and $12,500
as present market value.

Butt recessed the hearing until August 2.

FINES METED OUT IN POLICE COURT MONDAY

One Driver Arrested for Driving While Drunk Fined $50

Police made a half dozen or more arrests over the week-end and several fines were meted out by Judge S. A. Murry, during Monday.

Ted Tumbleson, whom police say started a fight with Edward M. Bowen on Court Street, Saturday night, was fined $10 and costs. Bowen was cited, but no charge filed.

Charles W. Byrd, city, for driving while drunk, was fined $50 and the costs.

Morgan Yahn, Jr., New Holland, posted $15 bond for his appearance in court after police picked him up and listed him as having been driving 70 miles an hour within the city limits.

James Stark, colored youth, picked up for breaking into the Wendell Kirk stockyards office, and the Union Stockyards, was to have a hearing in Juvenile Court Monday afternoon.

Several picked up for being intoxicated were fined $5 to $10 each and the costs.

VIOLIN AND PIANO RECITAL SUNDAY

Mrs. Frances Core and Mrs. Ethel Willis Present Pupils

Mrs. Frances Core and Mrs. Ethel Willis presented their violin and piano students in a joint recital Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Willis home on Van Deman Street.

The program of music was prefaced by a talk on "Music as an Education" and "Music as a Recreation," by Mrs. David S. Craig. Mrs. Craig brought out how thought and emotion are affected by good and bad music, and how these influences are started in the home at a very early age.

Mrs. Craig has been a strong influencing factor for good music in our community for a number of years and spoke to the parents in a most charming manner.

Brewers Cut Indian Lead

(By the Associated Press)
The Milwaukee Brewers have managed to cut Indianapolis' lead in the American Association to two games, but the question today is: "Where do they go from here?"

Eddie Hanyzewski, who was recalled by the Chicago Cubs yesterday, hurled the Brewers to a 14-5 victory in the opener of a doubleheader against Minneapolis. Milwaukee dropped the afterpiece with a thud, 11-3. But Walter Kramer by Joanne Brown—Violin and Mrs. Core—Piano.

Cameras Cannot Lie!

By BERT H. DAVIS
(Central Press Association)
WASHINGTON, D. C.—Without setting foot on European soil, a photo intelligence man of the American Air Forces knows a good deal about what goes on on the ground.

He is as well-informed about ground conditions as the surgeon who uses X-ray photos to plot and diagram what he will do in the operating room.

Following the bombers, our reconnaissance flyers go over the big targets, bringing back still pictures and movies of incredible clarity. Headquarters gets a block by block and pier by pier summary of what our bombs accomplished. They can tell how the damaged city's life goes on, what plants are being repaired, and how transportation fares.

Nazis and Fascists are at wits' ends in trying to fool our cameras. But when you do not own the air you cannot keep the photographers from doing their stuff at all hours of the day, so that presently the Air Command has a pictorial diary of dozens of industrial centers and ports in varying stages of disrepair.

Camouflage is just about useless when the devastated areas are so large and the analysis of the aerial pictures is so keen and complete.

Infra-Red Negatives
Infra-red negatives are often used in reconnaissance picture-taking. Loaded with that type of film, a camera is not baffled by distance and smoke and clouds to such an extent as when other emulsions are used.

"It's so penetrating," Lieut. Jack Carlson says of infra-red, "that if your picture is taken just after shaving, the negative will show signs of tomorrow morning's crop of whiskers getting ready to poke through."

When the photographic officer talks about the Army's pictures and the way they are analyzed, he often branches off on some comparison to commercial and news photography. Some of my questions did not get the brush-off but ended on a non-military sidetrack just the same!

But a beginner's lesson in reading aerial prints and applying what they reveal can be given without letting any cats out of bags.

Such basic instruction begins with the discovery that the Army's "before" and "after" photographs of a bombed city look much alike to the novice. Even the expert will not try to draw many conclusions from the airman's view of, say, Cagliari in Sardinia, till he turns on the right light and adjusts his stereoscopic sights.

Maps Are Enlarged
Before him will be a blown-up or enlarged, map from the reconnaissance camera. A good deal of his work may consist of comparing maps taken under just about the same conditions on various days. In this way he gets a picture of accumulating destruction and of the operations that need to be completed before a town can be marked off as "knocked out of the war for six months" or perhaps for the duration.

For group study some of the stills—and, perhaps, frames from a movie film—will be projected in greatly magnified form on a screen.

"But you get nearer to your subject, and down close to the roofs that are no longer there," explains Carlson, "if you go over every square inch of the enlargement with the stereoscopic lenses."

There was a stereoscopic of sorts—called a stereopticon—in your grandma's parlor. You looked through it at two pictures, taken with cameras placed side by side, and the two merged into one view that had lots of breadth and depth. The idea has been adapted much more expertly in the analysis of the pictures that airmen bring back from reconnaissance flights.

Dissecting a Photograph
Continuing the elementary lesson I took: With the picture magnified and given perspective, you begin to see separate buildings, waterways, trains, "trams" or trolley cars, and even people. Your photographer went over at a height of five or six miles, but now you seem to be much closer than that to the target.

"Look for bomb damage—and see if you can determine where the incendiaries went to work and where we blew holes in the buildings," suggested Lieutenant Jack.

With as many hints as some radio quiz-masters give, I was able to deduce that the burned structures and areas showed up blacker than their surroundings, while newly bombed areas looked whitened and washed up. The idea behind those whiter patches chinery. Right about then the officers are setting a date for the next performance of "Hell Over Naziland" at that particular spot.

By similar means the repairs to utilities such as power plants and water systems are recorded. Photo intelligence has an over-all view of after-raid conditions such as the "master minds" of the Axis lands now lack.

While Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was still getting supplies from Genoa and other ports in Italy, the British Royal Air Force took pictures of air raid results. Shots from the clouds showed that many people were afoot in Genoa and there were no street cars in sight.

"That told the British that the power lines or more likely, the power house, must have been knocked out," my instructor observes. "Hence the docks would be tied up for want of power. You cannot rush a loading job for a losing army when you have to do without electrical conveyors and cranes. Genoa did not move much freight to Rommel after the power went off."

One of the fine points of photo intelligence is to supply a scale to measure the distances in pictures taken from the air. The flying height of the plane gives an approximate scale, and this can be checked by measuring familiar objects that show up in the enlargements—a railroad car, for instance. Once the scale is supplied, a good many more details of bomb damage can be calculated.

That is only the beginning—the lieutenant suggests. He will be telling us more one of these days, after victory comes.

asked "where have you come from?" He already had dropped his cigarette and straightened his shoulders when he saw her approaching.

"I have just returned from Tunisia," he said. The rest of his story is this: He was the bomber-navigator on a Fortress which spent the week before the North African landings in ferrying staff officers to headquarters at Gibraltar. He went on the first of his 36 bombing operations from North Africa on Nov. 20, attacking an airfield in Sardinia.

In a raid on Tripoli on January 1, the Fortress, piloted by Lieut. Ray Wilkins of Selma, Ohio, was heavily attacked by fighters and flak.

"The whole tail assembly caught fire," Rosenson said. "When we saw we couldn't put it out, we rang the alarm and bailed out."

Hiking across the desert with Technical Sergeant William Bishop of Louisville, Ky., tail-gunner, he joined up with the Fighting French in southern Tunisia and reported back for duty even before a message could be sent his family that he was missing.

Two others are prisoners and six others including Wilkins, are missing.

"I had read a RAF pamphlet which tells how to travel in the desert and to find food and water," he said. "It didn't tell you how to steal clothes from the Arabs—which I did."

"When I came to England in July, 1942, I was anti-British," he added. "The whole outfit was. Everybody said, 'the British will fight to the last American' and all that stuff. The truth is the British will fight to save the last American."

Allies' Flying Photographers Foil Axis Efforts to Hide Bomb Damage

is that new surfaces have been exposed, and until they are colored by smoke, dirt and use—or by speedy camouflage—they are as noticeable as a gash left by a razor.

Even when the charred appearance leaves the burned out buildings, you have clues that Carlson and other students of aerial photography know are dependable.

Pick up a street in the photograph and watch for rows of white dots that seem to form a fairly regular pattern along the pavements. The dots are from sunlight coming through windows in the walls of buildings that have lost their roofs, and striking on pavement that would normally be wholly in the shade.

Once a plant or a whole industrial area is knocked out, the Air Forces keep track of the repair work. One picture in a series shows roofs have covered buildings that formerly looked like open shoeboxes. Railroad spurs are being restored and streets cleared of rubble.

A later development in the constant watch from the skies is the arrival of railroad cars and trucks with material and renovated materials. Right about then the officers are setting a date for the next performance of "Hell Over Naziland" at that particular spot.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By JAMES E. POLLARD

ANY GOOD REASON?

In one of the familiar parts of the marriage ceremony, the officiating minister may call upon any one who knows any good reason why the pair should not be joined to tell it or, the implication is, to keep his peace. To be sure, such an invitation is almost never accepted but this does not lessen its significance.

In this respect, the situation is analogous to that in many kinds of Public Notices, those of a public as well as those of a personal nature. With the publication of the notice as a declaration of intent, the proposed move becomes a matter of record. Any and all who have any reason to take particular notice or to begin counter steps thus have their opportunity.

It is their loss if they do not exercise it, but the important thing is to give them this chance to protect their rights. This is exactly what the Public Notice is intended to do. As the chief medium to this end the newspaper of general circulation serves another important function.

bini, Catania province, yesterday and caused some civilian casualties. Reggio Calabria and several other smaller localities on the toe of the Italian boot were reported raided last night.)

The Allied bombers roared over ravaged Messina, the northeast Sicily ferry port, to reach Naples.

Strategic sections of Messina lay in ruins after three whipsaw aerial assaults by Allied bombers in 36 hours, the latest Friday night.

(The Algiers radio, meantime, in a broadcast recorded by Reuters, quoted the Madrid newspaper Arriba as saying the Italian fleet had left its bases to carry out an offensive operation.)

(The Paris radio declared today that unnamed German landing craft had passed through the Bosphorus from the Black Sea, en route to the Aegean, as permitted by international convention.)

(It also was reported from the invasion zone that the continued Allied pounding of Sicily from the air has created an acute water shortage and that the island's 4,000,000 inhabitants would be put on water rations.)

The heavy Mediterranean actions brought frank warnings from Italian newspapers that invasion was imminent.

Meanwhile, over Europe, RAF Mosquito bombers sustained the greatest air attack of the war through its ninth night.

To the invasion-conscious Axis strategists, attempting to build up their strength in the Balkans, was left the decision whether the bombings were the customary prelude to attack, or a feint to hide operations elsewhere.

The Paris radio and Reuters reported passage of German landing craft through the Bosphorus on the Black Sea en route to the Aegean.

Psychological War—Italian newspapers sought to ready the public for attack. Paraphrasing Churchill's words when invasion threatened England, one paper declared each city would become a fort, defended street by street, by soldiers with cannon and people with "guns and knives."

Russia — The great eastern front still remained relatively inactive, but on the Karelian Isthmus, scene of bitter but local fighting in the last few days, the Soviets reported capture of a Finnish strong point in hand-to-hand combat.

South Pacific—Attacks on two Japanese submarines over the week end, 200 miles southwest of Suva in the Fiji Islands and in the Coral Sea, were reported by South Pacific headquarters. One possibly on Japanese strong points in the Solomons were disclosed. Allied headquarters in Australia also reported fresh attacks in New Guinea, particularly on the enemy supply route between Lae and Madang.

Aleutians Battle—Main Japanese camp area on Kiska, last of the Aleutian Islands remaining to the Enemy was blasted by six great raids on Friday, and joint army and navy attacks indicated that an invasion of the island might be near.

Jap Warlords Warn People To Get Ready for Attack By Allied Bombers Soon

(While DeWitt MacKenzie is on vacation, this daily column is being written by Max Hill, former chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Tokyo)

By MAX HILL

Japan's military masters are too realistic to make the same foolish pledges to their people that the Germans once made about devastating air raids. Once Hitler's satellites boldly promised that German cities never would be bombed. They know better now.

But Tomokazu Hori, a rough and tumble Japanese who was educated in California and knows that fallacy of duping the common people, recently told Japan in a broadcast specially prepared for domestic consumption to be ready for such attacks. Hori is spokesman for the Japanese board of information.

Raid on Japan proper from the Aleutians and China are in the making, he warned, and then said:

"We cannot guarantee there is no possibility that America and Britain will not take concrete steps for operations against Japan."

He saw in the Allied Victory in Africa an opportunity for us to drop our "holding" war against Japan and instead wage one which was definitely offensive in character.

Despite the fact that he included the Aleutians there isn't much doubt that Burma is our logical route for attack. That means China in the long run, just as Hori pointed out to the home folk.

Until then, of course, we can only strengthen our forces in India, keep hammering at the defense outposts which circle Honshu, the main Japanese island, and seek to recapture Kiska, the American island which the Japanese took over more than a year ago.

This may be a sobering thought for those who think we have an easy time ahead in the Pacific. The Japanese captured the vast and rich Pacific area in less than ninety days. Since then their army—at least the main forces—have been doing nothing but build defenses.

In the meantime we have no more than engaged minor units on islands such as Guadalcanal, which is 3,000 miles from Tokyo. The rest of the army, with the help of at least a quarter of a billion Asiatics, has been prepared to ward off an attack.

By October, the Japanese will have had twenty months to exploit the resources of Malaya, the East Indies and the Philippines. I am sure no one is sanguine enough to believe we can retake this territory in the short time the Japanese found necessary to drive us out.

Since Tokyo seems to have sensed the timing of the promised Allied offensive against Japan, there can be no harm in saying that the guess is logical.

China must certainly can hold out until autumn—perhaps longer—but after that our policy in the Pacific will be the determining factor. We cannot go on indefinitely fighting a "holding" war in that area, whether or not the war in Europe is over.

GULFPORT, Miss., June 28.—(P)—Two Canton, O., soldiers, Pfc. Frank P. Pekab, 22, and Pfc. Samuel Verna, 29, both students in the airplane mechanics school at Gulfport Field, were killed Thursday afternoon when struck by lightning in their squadron area.

The men were standing under a small shed having a drink of water when the lightning struck.

WHEAT BLIGHT KNOWN AS SCAB IS DESCRIBED

Not Only Damages Wheat But Oats and Rye As Well

Right now the wheat "scab" is holding the spotlight in Fayette County by reason of the extensive damage it is causing to wheat, and indications are that barley, rye and oats may also come within the scope of the blight this year, as the blight affects the last named grains as well as wheat.

Symptoms of the scab fungus may be detected on the wheat head as it matures, and probably every field in the county is showing effects of the fungus disease.

The wheat may be attacked either at the base, middle or upper part and in each case the affected part shrivels and fails to develop. Infested heads usually develop a pinkish or whitish growth of the fungus.

Moderate temperature and high humidity encourage the development of the scab. The scab fungus lives also on old stubble of small grains and grasses and on corn stalks which serve as a source of infection to the developing heads.

No methods are known which will insure a crop entirely free from scab because of the wide distribution of the scab parasite and the uncertainty of environmental conditions.

The following methods afford a considerable measure of control: Use clean seed.

Fan all seed thoroughly to remove light-weight kernels.

Treat the seed before planting with an organic mercury dust which will prevent seedling blight.

The last serious infestation of scab on wheat in the county was in 1940. However, in spite of the serious infestation that year the county had a yield of 21.5 bushels per acre. Also, the average yield in the state was relatively high so that good yields have been obtained even in years when the "scab" was plentiful.

DEATH RAY for Enemy Germs

WAR-TIME SURGERY—Infection no longer undoes skill of military surgeon at the battle front.

By Henry C. Nicholas

(Central Press Association)

One of the wildest dreams of fictionists has now been realized. The long-sought death ray has been discovered by our scientists and is now one of the weapons of our armed forces. Through the use of deadly rays the lives of thousands of Allied soldiers have been saved in Africa and the South Pacific.

This miracle of science is a magic lamp which emits invisible rays which are harmless to man but which deal instant death to microbes floating in the air. As rapidly as possible the hospitals behind the battle lines are being equipped with these lamps.

Results Amazing

The results have been astonishing. Here is a weapon of war that saves rather than destroys human lives, and which will exert a profound influence on the postwar world.

In the most modern and best equipped hospitals in peacetime, in spite of rigid aseptic practice, there has been a certain percentage of deaths due to infections in major operations requiring deep chest and abdominal incisions. These are the cases where the operation was successful but the patient died.

In World War I infections developed in about one-third of the major operations in base hospitals. In spite of every precaution microbes would drift into open wounds, start infections, and often result in death of the patient. These invisible microbes had accomplished what the bullets of the enemy had failed to do.

But where these lamps have been installed infections have almost completely disappeared. The rays emitted by these lamps completely sterilize the surrounding air. So deadly are these rays that under the microscope bacteria in stagnant water have been seen to explode.

Before this lamp was adopted by our armed forces it was thoroughly tested in the hospitals of America. Dr. Deryl Hart, a distinguished surgeon in Duke hospital in North Carolina, reported that a single death due to infection following 132 major operations, following the installation of a battery of these lamps over the operating table.

Surgeons in American hospitals now have the record of a grand total of nearly 2,500 major operations performed under similar conditions. In not a single one of these operations did death follow as the result of infection.

An achievement almost as notable as the discovery of the lamp itself is the fact that a method has been found whereby fighting soldiers are able to carry these death rays with them into the jungles of the South Pacific.

Metal Anti-Germ Bombs

The rays they carry are not identical with those emitted from the lamp, but they are almost equally effective. Each group of soldiers on entering the jungle is supplied with a metal bomb about the size of a tomato can.

Here is a weapon of war such as no other army has ever known. This bomb has been packed under tremendous pressure with a germicide for which the world has been looking for generations.

This germicide is so powerful that one part in 2,000,000 parts of air will almost instantly kill bacteria numbering millions to the cubic foot. Pressure of a valve on the bomb will release a mist that will fumigate a regulation Army tent in three seconds.

Unlike most weapons of war, this lamp and bomb will undoubtedly play an important part in the postwar world. Not only patients in hospitals, but school children in institutions and schoolrooms, can now be protected by an invisible barrier, across which no microbe can cross without being killed instantly.

They are expected to be a powerful preventive of future epidemics. It is even predicted that these bombs will be found on the counters of merchants, where the housewife can purchase them to fumigate the air when she gives her home a good housecleaning.

An Aid to Milady

Industry is continuously finding new uses for this new lamp. Cosmetic manufacturers have found that the rays prevent the formation of molds on top of cosmetic creams, while bakeries have discovered that they destroy the microbes which float in the air and spoil cakes and bread.

In view of the fact that harmful bacteria are floating in the air everywhere it is not surprising that a myriad of uses have been found for these death rays, such as sterilizing toilet seats or destroying the bacteria on drinking cups at soda fountains or bars.

The idea of sterilizing the air, and thus destroying countless

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN

Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

War Manpower Commissioner McNutt and National Selective Service Director Hershey now say it is uncertain when the drafting of fathers will start on a nationwide scale, but that in all likelihood not before January, and perhaps not at all. In the meantime Secretary of War Stimson is making a new survey of Army personnel requirements. It is also rumored that draft quotas will be much smaller than usual during the next two or three months. All of these developments were predicted in this column several weeks ago.

Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion that Congress give him power to draft or conscript men up to sixty-five years of age, presumably for limited or noncombatant military service but actually as a means of compelling industrial workers to comply with War Labor Board and Presidential orders, has not met with favorable response on Capitol Hill. Many members frankly insist that if the President is not satisfied with present labor conditions he should follow the customary and constitutional method of submitting to Congress any proper legislation needed to correct conditions. To many members of Congress the empowering of the President to conscript industrial labor smacks too much of the old Russian Czarist system when that potentate would banish those who opposed him to the mines of Siberia. Almost all national legislators agree that those of draft age, and especially those who have received occupational deferment from military service, should be required to either work or fight—but at the same time feel that the conscription of grandfathers for industrial labor is going a little far.

As was predicted here two weeks ago, a strong movement has developed in Congress for the enactment of legislation to centralize the control of all food matters—production, distribution, rationing and pricing—in the hands of one individual, the food administrator, Chester Davis. Last week the House Committee on Agriculture disregarded the President's refusal to consider such action and by a heavy majority, reported out a bill that will take away present authority over food matters from the Office of Price Administration and the Department of Agriculture and concentrate it in the Food Administrator. The bill, which carried the name of Representative Fulmer of South Carolina, chairman of the House Agricultural committee, follows closely another measure which was originally sponsored by the Republican Food Study committee, and which was introduced a month ago by Representative Jenkins of Ohio. Favorable Congressional action on the Fulmer bill is considered likely.

During the past three weeks Congress has expressed itself, through amendments to appropriation bills and by other legislative action, as being opposed to the administration program of price roll-backs and subsidy payments. As this is being written, both the House and Senate are preparing for a show-down vote on subsidies. The administration, realizing the whole program is in danger, has been making desperate effort to obtain Congressional support, but present indications are that a congressional ban will be placed upon the payment of subsidies, although it is possible that subsidy agreements, already made may be carried out.

Reports are flooding into Washington from over the country regarding the shortage of corn for industrial and feeding purposes. At the present the average ceiling price on corn is $1.06 per bushel, with most owners refusing to sell at this price. While some market operators, including the government, may have considerable corn in storage, most of the nation's corn supply is owned and held on farms by the men who have grown it for the purpose of feeding their own livestock. Some industrial users of corn are insisting farmers be compelled to sell their corn, thus in turn making mandatory the sale of livestock before ready for market. That such action would eventually result in a tremendous meat shortage is seemingly overlooked.

The Commodity Credit Corporation is planning on selling a considerable amount of government owned corn, and has announced loans now outstanding on corn will be called as of July 15th, with the exception that much of the corn covered by such loans will be forced onto the market. However, the answer to the problem most generally advanced is to raise the ceiling price on corn to $1.25 or $1.35 per bushel. It is thought that any increase in corn prices must come through executive action, rather than by Congressional enactment, inasmuch as the President, a few weeks ago, vetoed the Bankhead bill which would have raised the ceiling price on corn.

For the past two weeks both the House and Senate have been holding long sessions beginning in the morning and lasting until late evening. Ten and twelve hours session have become the rule, as every effort is being made to enact all appropriations before the new fiscal year begins at midnight, June 30th. If all important work can be completed, legislative leaders plan a Congressional recess to begin around July 10th and continue until after Labor Day. The recess resolution

AXIS FEARS ATTACK THROUGH BALKANS

Espionage and Sabotage Are Increasing, Reports

(By The Associated Press)

Axis invasion anxiety, while still centered chiefly on Italy and her island outposts, turned again to the Balkans today following Thursday's raid by American bombers on an airbase near Salonika, Greece and German radio reports that the British eighth army is poised in Syria for action.

"There are signs that an Allied attack on the Balkans is imminent," said the German-controlled Vichy radio last night in a broadcast recorded by Reuters.

From within the Balkans themselves came reports of new defense measures. A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Sofia said that Bulgarian police had arrested a number of persons and barricades were erected after "suspicious persons" were seen near the waterworks.

Discovery of a Bulgarian espionage agency and the arrest of five of its members was reported in dispatches from Budapest.

ROCKING CHAIR PATRIOTS

Freedom to us in this country, is our greatest heritage—likewise, its preservation is our gravest responsibility.

We have used the freedom our men are fighting to perpetuate, as an instrument to avoid discomfort. Some of us went out on strike in vital defense work because we did not get the total wage increases demanded. Hundreds of thousands of us struck against government because we didn't think we were paid enough to dig coal with which to win the war. We actually have had the gall to wave the American flag over such acts, the same flag under which our troops are dying in every corner of the world.

Many of us, in our own selfishness, cheer at proposals for our government to run the show after the war, just like other governments have been running the show in Europe. We cheer because we think we can get more handouts from government. Apparently, after the war, we don't intend to stand up to wave Old Glory—we plan to do it sitting down in an easy chair.

This abuse of freedom must end somewhere, or there won't be any freedom to abuse. Our employing, tax-paying enterprises must be preserved as private endeavors. Men returning from war must be saved the right to go back to work under private employment, as free citizens. Unless the right is retained, its corollary, representative government, cannot survive. Neither can survive unless the shameful attempts to use our freedom to avoid the hardships of war are put down effectively and soon.

A DANGER TO BE WATCHED

A studious American newspaper man had an odd experience the other day. He was reading a book on the "Life and Letters of Lord Macaulay" when an old, faded piece of paper fell out, with this quotation written on it, presumably from Macaulay's writings:

"As to America, I appeal to the 20th century. Either some Caesar or Napoleon will seize the reins of government with a strong hand, or else your republic will be fearfully plundered and laid waste by the barbarians of the 20th century as the Roman Empire was in its fifth, with this difference—that the Huns and Vandals who ravaged Rome came from without her borders, while your Huns and Vandals will be engendered within your own country and by your own institutions."
To the finder of this quotation it seemed strangely timely. He has no doubt about the nation's ability to defend itself against foreign aggressors. But he wonders about the perils from within, and the growing danger from strong, selfish and arbitrary men produced by the nation's own vaunted "way of life." There are notable examples at this very moment.

LOCOMOTIVES AND GUNS

Historians will find a strange paradox in German military preparations. Hitler, who conceived war on wheels and in the air, failed to lay the foundation for such a war, a strong rail system. If Ger-

But one thing appeared certain at the national governor's conferences here: The Democratic administration hasn't yet "appeared" the all-important Democratic South.
This so-called "revolt," however, is mostly within the party, not against it. In other words, these party fences can be mended by remedying grievances which have caused Southern Democratic leaders to go all or partially anti-New Deal, or by nominating—at least for the vice-presidency — a Southerner in whom the South has complete confidence.
There were 14 Southern and Democratic border states represented here. I talked to many of the 13 governors and to one lieutenant governor (Wil-

Don't forget your old friends and those who have done you kindnesses. Keep your old friends as you make new ones, and you need have no fear for the future.

Today's Horoscope
Concentration, firmness of purpose and diligent effort should bring you success in life, since you are highly talented. Your nature is restless and fond of change, but your love is sincere and faithful. Your plans for a quiet day on this, your birthday, may be spoiled in the morning by a useless distraction. By afternoon you should be able to catch up with your work.

2. A surgical instrument which removes foreign articles from the throat and lungs.
3. Wearing down by erosion.

many collapses rather than retreats inch by inch, it will probably be due in no small degree to the crumbling of her railroads. As the magazine New Republic recently observed: "After four years of war, the German transport system—already so heavily taxed—must soon pass its first decisive test. This test will come with invasion, when other fronts on the European continent are added to the eastern front. Will Germany's transport system be able to cope with these gigantic new tasks?"

The world is anxiously awaiting the answer to that question. Millions of lives hang in the balance. A quick Nazi collapse or months of stubborn struggle may be decided by the strength of German railroads.

If the German railroads are so vital, what of our own railroads? The world doesn't have to wait for an answer. Our railroads are strong and the whole world knows it. They are strong because private railroad management spent billions of dollars making them strong long before Hitler had built his first plane. Private management spent those billions at a time when a good many people thought the railroads were an "outmoded" means of transportation.

COSTLY RIDDANCE

Advocates of government deficits without limit should now take a good look at their theories in action. The only limit on deficits is the speed with which borrowed money can be spent.

There is no use kidding ourselves. The country has been rocked back, back on its heels, and it cannot all be blamed on the fact that most of productive effort is being shot away in the war. Skyrocketing public debt has wrecked normal laws of supply and demand and savings. The prospect of state socialism has been immeasurably increased as a result of the debt. Wasteful spenders have had their day.

Taxation must be as balanced as crop rotation is to soil fertility, if savings and wealth are preserved for a continuous tax crop. Winning the war and the peace depends on both. Fumbling either agriculture or taxation means hunger and suffering, or worse.

Blood Pressure Still a Mystery

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PHYSICIANS have been taking the blood pressure regularly in every patient they see for over 40 years. The blood pressure apparatus is now as much a part of a

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Physician's regular equipment which he carries from house to house and uses on all of his patients as the stethoscope.

One would think that by this time everything about blood pressure had been settled. I used to collect literature on blood pressure. I started to put it in a book case in a filing system at my office and then I carried it home and put it in the cellar and it accumulated so that it ran up the walls like an erysipelas and finally reached the attic. And I had made only a partial collection. (P.S. My wife, poor wretch, made me throw it all out.)

Doesn't Recall Much

One would think that from this accumulation of literature that everything about blood pressure had been written. But it is not so. I doubt whether when even an accomplished practitioner of medicine takes a blood pressure and looks at a result he has the slightest idea how little information he has obtained.

This was brought forcefully to my attention about a year ago when I was trying to find out how many people at a certain age had a blood pressure over 150 systolic. I knew perfectly well what the average blood pressure of a man at the age of 50 is—the life insurance companies have told me that—but I did not want the average blood pressure. I wanted to know what the incidence of a blood pressure over 150 is—how many people have it.

I went to the directors of two life insurance companies in my neighborhood and found out not only that they did not know, but that all the literature they had on actuarial tables did not tell them. I then wrote to the medical directors of six life insurance companies in the United States and found that they did not know, but two of them very kindly consented to go over their figures and give me the results. These showed—stick to one age in order to simplify this discussion—that at the age of 50 about 10 per cent of people had a systolic blood pressure of 150 or over.

This is supposed to be the upper limit of normal, but obviously the life insurance statistics deal with a selected group. A man at the age of 50 does not submit himself to a life insurance examination if he knows he has high blood pressure or if he is being treated for low blood pressure or if he had high blood pressure in the past.

Data Collected

I therefore sent out questionnaires to a number of my professional colleagues and asked them to give me the figures on consecutive patients that they saw in the office and in the hospital. I also collected a number of my own on consecutive unselected patients. The results of this investigation of those who were confessedly sick showed that about 50 per cent of people at the age of 50 had a blood pressure over 150. This would indicate that high blood pressure at the age of 50 was more normal than abnormal because more people had it.

These figures of mine are substantiated by a study just completed which shows that on taking the blood pressures of about 15,000 people over 40 years of age the systolic blood pressure was 150 or over as follows: From age 40 to 50 in 13 per cent; ages 50 to 60 in 30 per cent; ages 60 to 70 in 49 per cent; ages 70 to 79 in 58 per cent and from 80 to 89 in 61 per cent.

This averages pretty well my own findings of the group of insurance cases (in good health) and the group who were under medical care.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. M.: What is a fistula? What is a fissure? Is there danger of either turning to cancer?

Answer: A fistula is a tract which extends from one opening in the body to another. It is almost always caused by infection and therefore discharges pus and other material. A fissure is nothing more than a longitudinal crack in the skin or mucous membrane. In answer to your third question, I presume you are referring to rectal fissure and rectal fistula in which case I would say there is no danger of either of them turning into cancer.

Uncle Sam Wants Additional Fats
Ohio Is Lagging Far Behind in Response

While Ohio housewives' contribution of waste fats for war purposes reached a new high mark during May, it is still more than 50 percent short of the state's quota, Robert O. Weible, executive state secretary for war production board's general salvage orphans announced Monday.
Weible said the May contributions totaled 558,000 pounds or 15,000 pounds above the previous high mark set in March and more than 30,000 pounds above the April figure. He said, however, that this was only 48.1 percent of the quota set by the Federal authorities for the state.
Every housewife in this community is urged to dispose of all waste fats possible to local butcher shops, so that the government's munitions program may not be reduced for lack of this important ingredient for manufacturing explosives.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE
THE NEXT day the "national police" of both Mexico and the States had arrived. Four quiet, sharp-eyed men in civilian clothes, they had trickled through Jean's office into Steve's to hold short, tense conferences, and then disappeared again on their mysterious errands around the countryside. She was not asked to take notes at these conferences, and Steve gave her no inkling of what was transpiring in them.
She had no desire to discuss them. Her curiosity was dead. She was conscious only of a dull, apprehensive terror as she watched the federal agents of two countries co-operating in a smooth, confident routine of closing in on their quarry.
Steve understood the daze through which she was carrying on her work. He was patient with her when he saw her mind go blank in the midst of a dictated sentence, stopping to repeat it casually, slowly for her. He could feel the grinding torture she was enduring each time Manzanares burst in with fresh reports. Out of sheer sympathy, he was beginning to feel a definite relief when Manzanares or one of the FBI men admitted, "No working evidence on the gang around here."
But he could not always shield her. There was the morning of the second day when he had pantomimed through the glass partition for her to bring into the conference the report she was typing. She had brought it, looking pale and remote in her apple-green suit, a small carbon smudge on her high brow where he had seen her press her hand to her aching head.
At sight of her, Manzanares, in the circle of FBI men around Steve, came momentarily from his absorption in the work.
"Did you know," he demanded, "of the fine work the Senorita Marsden has accomplished for us?"
The FBI men didn't. They regarded the embarrassed Jean with friendly admiration as Manzanares launched forth into a glowing and detailed description of her spying activities at the Rancho Casolima. "And it was the senorita herself," he finished triumphantly, "who saw with her own beautiful eyes the limping man talking to the one undoubtedly Jeffries in the hallway of the hacienda."
At the last words, Jean's eyes focused sharply on Manzanares. "They have found the limping man, then?" she whispered.
Manzanares nodded joyfully. "But, yes, senorita! Only this morning he was recovered by the police in Mexico City. He is one of the gang of Jeffries, and with him was discovered explosives sufficient to destroy another defense factory."
"Oh!"
Steve leaped to the rescue, alarmed at the closed, dull hopelessness settling over her face. "I wonder if you'd mind typing this report immediately, Jean?" he said casually.
Jean nodded gratefully and fled. One of the FBI men chuckled. "I'll give you the job, Landis, of selecting my next secretary. I like your taste."
"Would it not perhaps be a wise thing," suggested one of the Mexican detectives, "to allow her to pay another visit to the rancho? Our activities have been most discreet. She could still return there in the guise of friendship and, who knows, be successful once more."
"No!"
The men looked up surprised at Steve's violence.
"You're crazy if you mean that your presence has gone unnoticed in the village," he said irritably, "or that any members of the gang in this vicinity aren't nervous as cats about it. Jean is not going near that rancho. In fact, I'm concerned over her safety now, even in the hotel."
The FBI men dropped the subject immediately. Steve felt in their taciturnity a sympathetic realization of his feeling for her. It embarrassed him, but didn't change his determination to protect her from any further participation in this sordid business in which her heart had so treacherously involved her.
When they had gone, Steve sat on at his desk, his work before him for once going unnoticed. He WAS concerned about Jean. In the next few days, if the FBI men accomplished what they seemed confident they would, her part in the round-up would certainly be known by the criminals involved—if not actually broadcast by the garrulous Manzanares. And vengeance often was swift in this country. A stool-pigeon of the law was hated with virulent ruthlessness as Manzanares himself had often told him in his rambling tales of capture. Reluctantly he reached a decision and rang Jean's buzzer.
Through the glass partition she sent him a quick smile and held up a hand in the pantomime they had worked out, meaning, "With, or without notebook?"
"Without," he signaled, and

Vaudeville's Not Dead - - It's in the Army

By CLAYTON J. IRWIN
NEW YORK — No wonder they couldn't find out what happened to vaudeville. It's in the Army under an assumed name, and only a couple of million soldiers and sailors know about it.

Business is terrific and the customers are howling for more. A lot of the performers are eating better and living better than ever and it looks like things will stay that way for the duration.

Around the offices of USO—Camp Shows, Inc., which is responsible for the condition, they refer to this war-style vaudeville as Tabloid Troupes, of the from the Red and White circuits, which take in the big Blue Circuit—distinguishing it scale shows, the celebrities and the overseas units. They hire the talent, make arrangements for salaries and turn the troupes over to the Army and Navy. From there on, it's as secret as the sailing of a convoy.

Troupes Travel
Tonight, a tab troupe may materialize at the site of a hidden anti-aircraft emplacement. Without a stage, props or scenery, a two-hour show will be put on. Tomorrow night, the troupe may be a hundred miles away doing the same show at a Navy, or Coast Guard beach station whose existence is known only to a handful of people.

Audience Participation
The program is heavy on the side of audience-participation. The routines must be clean fun, and there have been only a couple of instances where performers injected off-color comedy into the act. USO-Camp Shows Inc., also takes responsibility for the good conduct of the troupe and will cancel the contract of a performer who doesn't behave himself.

Troupes travel under War and Navy department auspices, riding in command cars, station wagons and auxiliary vessels. They frequently eat with the soldiers and sailors and often are overnight guests in the camps. A performer makes around $75 a week on a six-months' contract, subject to renewal, which the sponsors say is more than they'll average playing to civilians.

Do the vaudevillians like their jobs? The head office answers that with some of the letters the performers send back. Their principal worry is how they'll be able to adjust themselves to post-war audiences, whose polite applause can never, never mean as much as the uninhibited howls, the whistling and the stamping of servicemen really enjoying themselves.

Japan has five cities with populations of more than one million—the same number as the United States.

National Convention Is Held by Phi Beta Psi Sorority at Cincinnati

Three Attend from Washington C. H. To Hear Reports of the National Project

Miss Helen Hutson, appointed as parliamentarian for the convention, and the two delegates, Mrs. Robert Wilson and Mrs. Ted Preston arrived home Friday evening from Cincinnati, where they spent the week attending the national convention of the Phi Beta Psi Sorority.

The one hundred and fifty members present were housed at the beautiful Netherland Plaza Hotel, and sessions of the convention were held there.

Tuesday, June 22, was devoted to the registration and arrival of delegates, business meeting, and a visit to Coney Island in the evening.

Following the business meeting Wednesday morning, the members were taken to Crosley Field to attend the baseball game. That night stunts were put on by five chapters. The Middletown chapter won the prize with a pantomime "It's a Boy."

Thursday morning the final business session was held with reports being given concerning the national project. The national organization of the sorority gives $1000 each year towards the Foundation for Cancer Research.

The first Phi Beta Psi International Cancer Research Foundation Fellow is Dr. Gwei-Dien Lu who was born in Kiangsu, China, and came to this country in 1939 as the official Chinese delegate to the Sixth Pacific Science Congress.

Before Dr. Lu came to this country her researches were concerned with carbohydrate metabolism in patients and animals suffering from vitamin deficiencies. She is an authority on vitamin B-1 deficiency and six publications date from this period (1933-1937).

At present Dr. Lu is working under Dr. Hans T. Clarke of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. She hopes to return to Shanghai when the war is over and to rebuild the clinical research unit which she and Dr. Platt founded in 1933.

Thursday noon luncheon and ice revue was held in the very lovely Restaurant Continentale. In the afternoon a tour was made of the new WLW studios. The finale came with the banquet served in the Pavilion Caprice at which time a floor show was staged by the Sinister Martin School of Drama.

Monday evening a picnic will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Baker, and the assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Paul Pennington, Miss Jeanne Woollard and Miss Jane Durant.

BEFORE AND AFTER IN MILADY'S WARTIME WARDROBE

LADIES, HERE IS WHAT you can and cannot have in the way of new dresses under the new wartime restrictions on dress materials. Paulette Goddard, left, wearing the "before" model, could have all the sweep she wanted in her skirt and sleeves. Material used in this summer frock would make two like the "after" model Mimi Chandler wears. It has little fullness, uses draw-string neck. (International)

Hughey Post Buys Building Occupied By Moose

LEGIONNAIRES WILL OCCUPY NEW HOME SOON

No Extensive Changes To Made in Building at Present

Paul H. Hughey Post of the American Legion Saturday night closed a deal with the trustees of the Washington Savings Bank Liquidation Trust, for the purchase of the large two-story brick structure on North Fayette Street, formerly the Knights of Pythias Building, but which for several years has been occupied by the Moose Lodge.

Negotiations for the purchase had been under way for some time, and the Legionnaires came into possession of the building immediately upon the deed being signed.

The trustees signing the deed were: Edgar Coil, Rell G. Allen and Arch O. Riber, and after coming into possession of the building, notice was served on the Moose Lodge to vacate as soon as possible.

After the Moose Lodge obtains new quarters, some redecorating will be done to the building, after which the Hughey Post will move into their new home, and formal dedication ceremonies will be held, probably around September 1.

The building purchased was erected around 1900 by the Smead Heating Company, but failed to function properly, and was disposed of.

For years it was owned and occupied by Knights of Pythias Lodge, but the lodge dwindled in membership and the Washington Savings Bank took over the building as mortgage holder.

For several years the building has been occupied by the Moose Lodge. The structure is two stories in height, 60 by 82½ feet, and has a basement under the entire structure.

The building is almost ideal as a Legion home, and has ample facilities for the Legion Auxiliary and Forty and Eight organizations as well.

There is a large auditorium on each floor, with ample club rooms on both floors and large kitchen facilities on the first floor.

No changes of importance will be made in the building at present, and after some redecorating it will be occupied by the Paul H. Hughey Post which has occupied Memorial Hall since the post was organized.

Paul H. Hughey Post pays $5,000 for the structure.

REAPPRAISEMENT WILL START SOON

List of Appraisers Nearly Completed by Auditor

Reappraisal of real estate in Fayette County is to get under way within a short time.

County Auditor Ulric T. Aetion has been preparing for this important work for sometime, now has his list of appraisers almost complete, and books ready for work in most of the subdivisions.

Plans have been made so that the appraisers can complete their work at the earliest possible time, but as each appraiser must make a personal visit to all properties in his territory, several weeks will probably be necessary in some instances.

Louisiana is known as the Pelican state and the Creole state.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

No More Brass

On land or at sea our fighting men do their many chores by the sound of a bugle. All sorts of uncomplimentary epithets are used to designate the bugler, but nobody has yet been able to provide a satisfactory substitute for a bugle although recordings are used at some permanent bases.

Aboard ship the men fall in at the order of "Pipe muster." On land the bugler sounds "Assembly!" But no matter where the bugle is used thousands upon thousands of them must be bought and paid for out of the money we are investing in War Bonds.

ROBERT J. OSBORN FUNERAL IS HELD

Burial in the Wilmington Cemetery

Funeral services for Robert J. Osborn were held at the Klever Funeral Home, Saturday at 2 P. M. and were largely attended by relatives and friends from a wide area.

The services were conducted by A. W. Weber, first reader of the Second Christian Science Church in Columbus.

There was a wealth of very beautiful flowers, including many from business associates.

Burial was made in the family lot in the Wilmington Cemetery.

The honorary pallbearers were: Harry Nolan, Rollo Marchant, John Marchant, Ed Fite, George Steen, Cliff Reed, Alfred and Clifford Osborn and Willard Zimmerman.

The pallbearers were: Carl Smith, Guy Grant, Thomas Brown, Mark Gorton, W. E. Passmore and Earl McCoy.

FEW TRANSIENTS WORRY CITIZENS

Only Men Well Up in Years Now on the Road

Captain Jess Ellis said Monday that very few "bums" are gathered up by the police dragnet any more and that this condition has existed for some time.

Nearly all of the men now "on the road" are men above 50 years of age, he declares.

Those of younger years have no excuse for not finding jobs and have been simply driven off the road by law enforcement officers generally.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. MARY KOCH

Rev. H. E. Elliott conducted the funeral services for Mrs. Mary Koch, Sunday, at 2 P. M., at the United Brethren Church in Beaver, and burial was made beside her late husband at that point.

The choir sang, "Jesus Savior Pilot Me," "In the Sweet Bye and Bye" and "It is Well With My Soul."

The services were largely attended.

The pallbearers were: Joe Schentle, John Spangler, Ed Frey, Watson Gilliland, William Hoover and Henry Kuntzman.

Because he was following birds in flight, Columbus would have been led to what is now the United States if his voyage had been in spring rather than fall.

60 LEGION MEN COME TO CITY FOR CONVENTION

R. B. Tharp Is Endorsed For the Department Treasurer

Sixty Legionnaires, representing 17 out of the 21 posts in the seven counties in this district, attended the district convention of the Legion, held at Memorial Hall, Sunday, and during the session R. B. Tharp, who has long been prominent in Legion circles, was unanimously endorsed for department treasurer, or state treasurer of the organization.

Gus Boop, state commander, was present for both forenoon and afternoon sessions, over which he presided. He spoke briefly to the Legionnaires at the opening session, and presided over the business session.

At the noon hour, the Legion Auxiliary served a delicious lunch which was thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors and members of Paul H. Hughey Post.

In the afternoon City Manager Edwin Ducey gave a brief address of welcome to the visitors.

This session was open to the public and many local citizens were in attendance.

Chief speaker of the afternoon was Rostater S. William, vice-commander of the Department of Ohio, who resides at Oak Hill.

Williams outlined the Legion program, spoke of the trying ordeal through which the nation is now passing, and urged every member to "keep his feet on the ground" at all times.

He impressed upon his audience the seriousness of present conditions, and the necessity of everyone doing all in their power toward winning the war.

He urged the rank and file of citizens to realize the great responsibility that rests upon every civilian who must continue to do his or her part and do it well, to win the war.

"Some people are more interested in getting all they can and do not realize the big money they earn now is at the expense of our boys' very lives—blood money," William said in the course of his address.

"We must sacrifice, we must work hard and above all we must pray. Our armed forces are doing all that, so why shouldn't we," he said.

Ed Keiffer, department service officer of the Veterans' Hospital, Dayton, spoke on rehabilitation work, dependency allowances, insurance claims and disability benefits of World War No. 2 soldiers.

The endorsement of R. B. Tharp as department treasurer follows a widespread movement throughout the state for Tharp as treasurer. The election will be held at the state convention in Cincinnati in August.

Gus Boop and R. B. Tharp were elected district delegates to the national convention in Omaha, Neb., and Mack Lilly, Iron-ton, and Oren Dresbach, Chillicothe, were named alternates.

Greenfield was chosen for the district fall meeting.

LIGHTNING HITS TREE AND KILLS FIVE SHEEP

During an electrical storm Friday evening, lightning struck a tree in a pasture field on the John L. Marchant farm on the Bogus Road, three miles east of this city, and killed five head of sheep that had taken shelter under the tree.

REVIVAL SERVICES

A revival meeting opened Monday in a tent on East Paint Street under the sponsorship of the Second Pilgrim Holiness Church with Helen W. Tatman of Circleville and Rev. Delbert Harper, the church pastor, conducting the services.

Special music, featuring the singing of the Dickinson sisters of New Plymouth, has been arranged.
